The First Generation Student Advisory Council consists of first generation students* who share their personal experiences of the college admissions, entrance, and transition to/through college to assist the University of Nebraska – Lincoln to enhance the experience of future first generation students. The council will discuss topics surrounding first generation students and help provide feedback on the development of the First Husker program.

Students who have participated in the First Husker program are eligible to sit on the advisory council, for the first year. Subsequent years, an application process will be implemented.

The council will meet the last Friday of every month that classes are in session at 1:00 PM for one hour in Love South Library.

Interested students should e-mail Heather Reed at heather.reed@unl.edu by Monday, January 25th. Meetings will be held on Friday: January 29th, February 26th, April 1st (adjusted due to Spring Break), and April 29th.

Students should include the following in the email:

- Name
- NUID
- Phone Number
- Email
- One paragraph on why you are interested in serving on the advisory council.

*First generation student refers to a student whose parents have not graduated from a four-year institution of higher education.
